

Is the Basseterre all black kit suitable for the field

Overview

Yes it's ALOT better and RECOMMENDED you play with colors other than black especially for outdoor day time games. You're between the players who are in camo, and people who play in non camo civi clothes Just ensure you have proper hydration with you. This is especially obvious on all black kits where none of the blacks match, both tone and glossyness wise. Variety is also the spice of life, mix some non black stuff in there. Get some multicam black pieces to add some textural difference or go even further and add some FDE stuff to really look. Subreddit for both professional and civilian tactical gear. Is it worth it?

On a dark cqb field yes.

The right kit can make all the difference in properly and efficiently processing game in the field. But with so many options on the market, it can be overwhelming to find the best one.

Camo vs. Black kit in the field : r/tacticalgear

I know airsoft isn't real combat but I've noticed that black "camo" won't let you blend in anywhere. You always look like a shadow, even in an almost pitch black shadow you stand out, like ...

The Modern UKSF (SAS/SBS) Kit List #1

People often ask for a definitive UKSF kit list, but it's not that easy to be definitive - even if you've been researching it for years. In the wild, different kit is worn for different missions and AO's ...

Is a black loadout really that bad? : r/airsoft

Black gear stands out quite a bit in wooded environments and it's prone to getting very warm in the sun. I guess it's for indoor fields but outdoors it's a fairly big disadvantage.

Want to run an all black kit, will it be fine? : r/airsoft

I play a particular field most often, which combines a woodland and buildings/containers together, I wouldn't say the buildings are big, but you can't see me inside the containers or pill boxes in ...

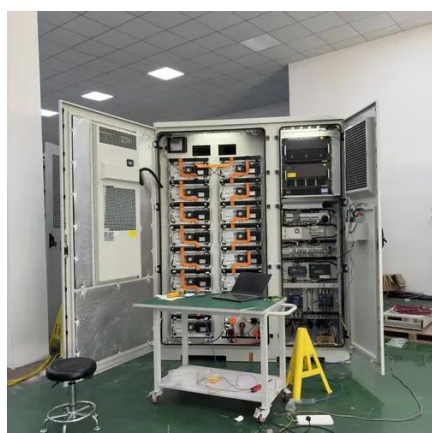

Are black kits really that bad : r/airsoft

As for downsides of black, others have covered it - unless you're speedsofting where everyone does black and an accent, you'll stand out on every field because the field isn't black.
